The Short Work Day

Many things which are fine in theory, and in support of which seemingly incontrovertible arguments can be advanced, do not come up to expectations nor prove a success when the acid test of actual experience is applied. All right in theory, they are failures in practice.

Since the war, and in the temporary period which has been one of the aftermath of the great struggle, quite a number of ideas over which people theorized have been given a trial. Russia has gone the limit in socialistic experiments, conducting property, placing a ban on capital, and generally attempting to run the country on plans never before attempted, but which had for years been lauded and advocated by certain theorists. The world knows the result—Russia ruined, an outlaw among the nations, her people starving by the hundreds of thousands, her hands untitled to a great extent, and her great industries idle and useless.

In other countries, including Great Britain, United States, Canada and Germany, the experiment of greatly reducing the daily number of hours of work is being tried out with, as yet, no appreciable results of a beneficial character resulting to the workers, while the effect on industry and commerce generally, and on the living costs of all people has been disastrous.

Germany probably reveals the best example of the results of this experiment. Under the old autocratic form of monarchical Government, the workers of Germany had to work long hours. Following the revolution and the abolition of the Kaiser, a Workers' Government came into power. Hours of labor were greatly reduced, the old nine and ten-hour days being replaced by an enforced eight-hour day for all occupations, and to seven and six hours for certain arduous occupations. The experiment has not been a success, and, although Germany still has a Workers' Government, it is now proposed to add one or two hours to the working day. This policy is not being forced on the workers; it is the labor leaders themselves who see the necessity for the longer workday.

The theory back of the much shortened workday is that the free time thus provided for the worker is to go into the family life, recreation, study—in short, to enable the worker and his family to cultivate qualities valuable to the family, society and the coming generation, to improve health and generally enable the worker to devote more attention to his home and self-improvement. Germany, however, is learning by experience that shortening of the workday below a certain figure develops into a problem of disposition of the free time.

It is pointed out by a writer in the Saturday Evening Post that when a twelve-hour workday is shortened to ten hours the disposition of the two hours does not constitute a problem, but when this free time is extended from two hours to four or even six hours a day a civic and economic problem arises. It has been found that this free time is devoted to a marked extent to one form or another of waste. The waste, it is pointed out, is often economic, in that the free time is devoted to trivialisms that reduce the family income for necessities. In a word, the fact is that the free time has, with many, not been devoted to social, cultural, or economic ends, nor even to recreation, but has been wasted, resulting not in an improvement of the condition and health of the worker, but in all round loss to him and his family.

German labor leaders are awakening to the fact that their old theory that with a shorter workday the output per hour would be increased is not working out in actual practice; that the physical condition and morale of the worker has not improved; and that the only way to increase production and thereby enable Germany to pay her debts and rehabilitate her industries, is to increase the workday. They realize that the present situation and future hope of Germany depend upon increased production, and that this can only be achieved by longer hours of labor.

Germany does not stand alone in the need for increased production. The whole world suffers from the same need, and particularly industrially developed nations like Great Britain, the United States and Canada. If the shorter workday had resulted in the physical and intellectual improvement of the worker and his family, then the gain would have offset the loss in production, but when there is no gain in that direction, but only loss to add to loss, it is becoming increasingly evident that the extreme short workday is a mistake economically, both for the nation and the individual.

No Family Quarrels

Great Britain needs Canada, as Canada needs Great Britain, and in their hearts the people of both countries know it. Only by standing and pulling together can the various members of the Commonwealth of Nations fulfill their great destiny of helping, as no other band of nations can, to bring about the unity and peace of the world.—London Times.

Poison In Mushroom Cap

Animals usually know what is good and bad for them, and squirrels will consume the stalks of poisonous mushrooms without any apparent ill-effects. The cap of the plant is left. This sug- gests the idea of a poison test in the rejection of produce, the escape of the feeding squirrels not being due to any special immunity. But the subject requires careful investigation.

French Deserter Was Foolhardy

Arrested on Swiss Frontier After Defying Police for Years

A wealthy Frenchman, F. Bertrand, described as a deserter, has been arrested at Geneva at a moment when he had practically one foot on either side of the Swiss and French frontier line, in a cafe that straddles the border. The cafe is in the village of Saint Julien on the international boundary. Part of the building is in Switzerland and part in France.

Early in the war Bertrand settled in Geneva where, his resources were, he made a large fortune trading with Germany. He bought a villa and several automobiles, and led a life of pleasure. He said he was more French than German, and took pleasure in speaking about France, particularly in the cafe at Saint Julien where, safe on Swiss territory in one of the drinking rooms, he could be overheard and even seen by the French police in the rooms on the French side.

There the French listened to his annoying talk but, unable to catch him on the French side, they could arrest him in the drinking room—that-when there was no police about—he would enter France and return without a passport.

Bertrand, after dining well, crossed the border by going from the room on the Swiss side to great some friends. At the instant he passed the line into France he was seized upon by two French gendarmes. He put up a fight, but was quickly subdued, handcuffed and carried away.

Strained Muscles, Sprains, Can Be Treated Quickly

In minor sprains, the muscle is strained a little and that is needed a vigorous rubbing with Nervine. This draws the extra blood away—and permits the muscle to return to its normal condition. The agency Nervine enjoys is owing to its penetrating power. It goes deeply, and it draws out the poison, and draws up toxins that have been absorbed by the muscles. Scatals. There is about five times the pain relieving power in it than in any other liniment. Sold everywhere, 25c per bottle.

British Ships for Canada

The campaign of Canada's Trade and Commerce Department to attract British war surplus to one country is now being known to the public. The net result is that representatives of four important British firms are actually in Canada for the purpose of locating sites, while fifteen other companies have the matter under consideration. Of these latter nine or ten are expected to send men to look over the ground in the course of the next year.

GUARD BABY'S HEALTH IN THE SUMMER

The summer months are the most dangerous to children. The heat, the plants of that season, which are so full of poisons, the insects and dysentery, come on so quickly that often a mother is at bay before she realizes the danger. The mother must be on her guard to prevent them. They can be kept off by giving her baby's own tablets. They regulate the stomach and bowels, and are completely safe. Sold by medicine dealers or at all drug stores. A box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Speed of Fingers Differs

The fingers of your right hand are quicker and more accurate than your left, says the Popular Science Monthly.

The ring finger on your left hand shows a burst of speed whenever it can work with the forefinger of your right hand; and it slows down noticeably when it must team with the middle finger of your left hand.

Two fingers working together are faster than one going it alone. And a combination of two fingers on opposite hands is faster than two fingers on the same hand.

Practice, which it increases the speed of all fingers, tends to increase the rate of the slow ones more than the fast ones, thus overcoming the handicap of that one that lags naturally.

Suffered So Her Hair Turned Gray

Husband of Winnipeg Woman Tells About Her Terrible Experience

"I never would have believed any medicine could bring about such a change as Tanale has done in my wife," said Harry Gray, of 125 Bryce st., Winnipeg, Manitoba. "For many years she suffered from stomach trouble and bilious attacks which, of late, were so violent that she had to go to bed for two or three days at a time. She got to be very thin and as weak as a child. She had such terrible headaches and suffered so dreadfully that though still a young woman, her hair turned gray. "But the way Tanale helped her is wonderful. She has gained fifteen pounds and is the picture of health. Tanale is the finest medicine in the world."

Tanale is sold by all good druggists.

Activity in Building

Recent Returns Indicate Heavy Increase Over Last Year

Building operations in Canada are showing large expansion this year, according to the reports received from fifty cities by the Federal Land Department. The returns for the month of May just published, indicated an increase of 25.5 per cent. over April and 22.6 per cent. over May of last year. The value of building authorized in these fifty cities during May was $17,245,235, compared with $14,082,170 for April and $13,462,165 for May, 1921. The volume of building contemplated in all provinces except New Brunswick, Manitoba and British Columbia showed considerable gains during May. Quebec province reported an increase of 21.2 per cent., from $2,619,710 for April to $3,262,282 for May; while Saskatchewan topped the list in percentage gains by registering an increase of 316 per cent., from $29,985 for April to $1,231,321 for May. Of the larger centers, Montreal and Toronto registered increases in the value of projects listed as compared with both April, 1922, and May, 1921. Winnipeg and Vancouver showed declines from April, but gained over May of last year. Brandon, Moose Jaw, Regina, Saskatoon, Calgary and Edmonton reported considerable expansion over April and over May of last year.

Britain's Military Strength

Reduction to Ninety Thousand Being Contemplated by Press

The proposal that Britain's army should be reduced to a strength of ninety thousand of all ranks which is to be made when the mixed commission of the League of Nations presents its report to the Council of the League, in the near future, is being generally condemned by the British press, which thinks that the world's military commitments in Britain makes it necessary for her to have an army at least as large as that of previous days.

The army is already below what some conservative critics regard as the minimum, but the agreement is warmly supported by Lord Esher, who is the author largely responsible for the scheme. The Sunday Express had a long and somewhat bitter article denouncing Lord Esher as an amiable but industrious nuisance and it demands that he show his authority for jostling with the military strength of Britain.

Buried Culture of the Past

Discover a Shrine Antedating the Cliff Dwellings

Discovery of a shrine and other unique ceremonial objects used in the mysterious rites of a people believed to be older than the ancient cliff dwellers has been made by Dr. J. Walter Fawcett, chief of the Bureau of American ethnology, in excavations near Fair View House in the Mesa Verde National Park. According to information received by the Smithsonian Institution at Washington, these finds are the result of the field work just begun and are expected to be followed by others which will throw more and add much to the knowledge of the culture which is buried in the past.

The most striking result of the digging is a shrine on a raised dais on the floor of a large ceremonial chamber. On the shrine dais, fetishes, prayer calls, plaster with corn, tobacco, etc., were found as well as twelve well preserved clay pipes unlike anything ever before found in these ruins. In the process of excavating a duck, also among the exceptional archaeological collections made. In a room barely five feet long beautifully decorated pottery radically different in ornamentation from that of the cliff dwellers was found and the indications are that this ruin belongs to a much older date than the cliff cliff dwellers.

Great Britain Will Pay War Debts To United States in Full

London.—The debate in the House of Commons on inter-Ally debts and German reparations which it had been expected would bring out further interesting facts respecting the recent note of the Earl of Balfour on the subject and Great Britain's future policy on the whole question of international relations, proved disappointing.

During the five hours of debate there was constant iteration of Great Britain's intention to repay her debt to the United States, but no pains were spared to make clearly apparent Great Britain's sacrifice in the war, her generous post-armistice attitude and her staggering burden of taxation.

Sir Robert Horne, Chancellor of the Exchequer, said Great Britain had no intention of suggesting any alteration of her financial obligations to the United States, that the Government recognized to the full Great Britain's obligations to pay the debt "and we don't mean in any shape or form to evade that obligation."

Sir Robert pointed out that the British debt was greater than that of any other nation, amounting to £7,746,000,000, compared with £2,176,000,000 for the United States and £4,340,000,000 for France. The British debt was £181 per head of the population, the French £142 and the United States £47, he showed, and in these circumstances it was impossible to make the British taxpayer alone shoulder the payment of the war debts.

"If only the nations which fought side by side in the war were willing to regard their subscriptions to the war as contributions to the common success," he continued, "we might have been able to rid the world of many causes of irritation and plant in the heart of humanity a new and inspiring hope."

Mr. Asquith was mild approbation from one side of the House by declaring the Balfour note impolitic and impertinent, but said he hoped subsequent events would prove the contrary. Laughter greeted his statement that the United States knew Great Britain was dealing in paper money when she emphasized the enormous expense of Europe's obligations.

Mr. Asquith expressed misgivings as to the wisdom of Lord Balfour's note and strongly advocated settling the French and other Allied war debts to England as not only politic but good business. He expressed the opinion that the United States debt ought to be kept quite distinct from European nations and deprecated any suggestion that the United States was under any obligation, moral or even sentimental, to waive its debts.

Canada's Forest Fires

Three Thousand Have Occurred This Year, Says Report

Ottawa.—Three thousand forest fires have already occurred in Canada this year, according to a pamphlet issued by the Canadian Forestry Association. British Columbia had about 1,400 of these fires and with Central Quebec has passed through the worst fire season in many years. Airplanes and aeroplanes are being used to great advantage in reducing this forest loss and have done excellent work in fighting the fires in the Columbia and Quebec basins, transporting fire fighting planes within one hour where travel by land and water formerly took 15 hours to two days.

The scheme which would be put into effect upon the definite refusal of the German Government to fulfill the agreement for payment of private debts owing to French citizens by Germany since before the war also involves expulsion of all the Prussian officials from the Rhineland, to be replaced by neutrals.
Other provisions include an extension in the power of the Allied High Commission and measures of economic pressure upon the principal German industries amenable to the action of the commission.

Bottomley Expelled From Parliament

Vote Taken After Reading Letter From Former Editor

London.—Herbert Bottomley, former editor of John Bull, has been expelled from the House of Commons by a vote of the members. After the speaker had read a long letter from him in which he was neither guilty nor conscious of fraud, and stating that he had been made "the victim of appalling errors of justice," the vote was taken.

Bottomley's letter said he was unable to leave the hospital and expressed deep sorrow at having brought a slur on the House, which he loved. Continuing, he wrote that if the truth were known he thought the House, in its generosity, would grant him, not only its forgiveness, but its sympathy.
The reading of the letter was heard in dead silence.

Famous Racers Perish in Fire

Lightning Struck Stable at Connecticut Valley Stock Farm
Hatfield, Mass.—Three famous race stallions were burned to death when the Connecticut Valley Stock Farm was struck by lightning and totally destroyed.
The stable was valued at $50,000, and in addition to this, about $40,000 worth of race horses locked up were burned to death. It was impossible to check up on all the horses, as many of them ran wild after they had been liberated. Among those burned were Peter Vomba, a 5-year-old stallion by Peter the Great, valued at $15,000; the Earl of Chatham and Nelson Todd. Both of the latter were valued at $5,000.

Fuel Board Making Plans To Secure Supplies Of Coal

Appoint Fuel Committee Have Supervisor Over Supply of Coal For Canada

Ottawa.—The Dominion Government has appointed a central advisory fuel committee to have general supervision over the supply of coal and other fuel throughout Canada. The committee consists of Hon. W. C. Kennedy, Minister of Railways; C. A. Marshall and Fred McCorr, of Montreal.

Premier Duggan, of Ontario, has been in conference with Premier King and Hon. Mr. Kennedy on the fuel situation. The Ontario Premier, it is understood, is arranging for cooperation between his government and the central advisory fuel committee.

The function of this central committee is regarded as supervisory, as being consultative and advisory. It is desired by the Government that the initiative in the supply of coal and other fuel should be left to the provinces and municipalities, and that the situation should be dealt with as far as possible through the ordinary channels of trade. If advice or information is desired by any of these other bodies the central committee will be ready to step in. It is not so much to exercise any control or to supplant the ordinary methods of supply.

Northcliffe Critically Ill

London.—Prayers for the recovery of Lord Northcliffe are being offered in the church at Barmston, at the request of Lord Northcliffe's mother, who lives near the little town in Hertfordshire.

The clergyman, in leaving the congregation to pray, said it was useless to disguise the fact that Lord Northcliffe was very dangerously ill.

Endeavor To Solve Delicate Problem Of International War Debts

London.—The British Government's

note to Great Britain's allies in the Great War, reminding them that they owe Great Britain money and that she has a right to ask for payment, has thrown wide open the most delicate topic in international politics. The discussion of the question of debts owed to Great Britain had been studiously avoided by all concerned, apparently with a view on the part of the creditor nation that the time for grasping that nettle might most conveniently be indefinitely postponed.

The most cheerful view of the effect of the Earl of Balfour's note was that it would afford an understanding all round discussed of what the policies and intentions of the governments concerned. It is considered that, next to regulation, or an equivalent plan of inquiry, to pay, there is probably the worst damage which Europe and the world of business could continue to suffer.

Within a few days after this week's conference between Premier Lloyd George and Poincaré, the policies of the Great Britain and France should be made clear. The French position in one vital respect already is plain—that all European post-war indebtedness is linked together, and that any solution of the situation must depend upon what Germany may be willing to do.

It is understood from the Paris correspondents of the London newspapers that France considers that any concessions to Germany in the matter of reparations and in help by a foreign loan should be balanced by similar concessions to France. New paper opinion is divided on the point whether Mr. Lloyd George's conference with Mr. Poincaré will be confined to the plan for dealing with Germany, or whether Lord Balfour's note will not force consideration of the wider field of inter-allied debts.

Ottawa.—"We are attending to it; that is all," was the reply made by Hon. W. C. Kennedy, Minister of Railways and Chairman of the Central Fuel Advisory Committee, when asked whether the Government had any policy regarding the fuel situation.

The committee was in session and steps were taken towards carrying out the desire of the Dominion Government to assist provinces and municipalities in securing supplies of coal through the regular channels. The conference was attended, it is understood, in addition to C. A. Marshall and Fred McCorr, the other members, by Mr. M. Mahoney, Canadian Agent in Washington. Mr. Mahoney brought information in regard to developments at the United States capital and their bearing on the problem of importing Pennsylvania anthracite for Canadian domestic use.

It is the desire of the Dominion Government, as already intimated, that the initiative as to getting coal should be taken by the local authorities, and that the initiative, and that all steps should be made of the ordinary channels of trade. The Central Fuel Advisory Committee will keep in touch with such various classes of the problem, and will be ready to advise and assist provinces and municipalities as they may require. The Central Fuel Committee is putting itself into touch with the various provincial governments and it is suggested that such authorities desiring assistance should put themselves in touch, in the first place, with the provincial administrations.

China Wants Permanent Constitution

Peking.—Parliament and President Li Yuan-hong are in complete agreement over the adoption of a permanent constitution for China similar to that of the United States, the cabinet announced. The right of each province to maintain its own assembly is to be recognized. This is believed, they say, will provide for the interests of the southern provinces for provincial autonomy.

Appointing Officials For Operation Of The New Wheat Board

Ottawa.—James Stewart and F. W. Riddell, who were the chief executive officers on the Canada Wheat Board in 1919, have been asked to take the offices of chairman and vice-chairman on the new board which is being established under the legislation passed by the Dominion Parliament and by the Legislatures of Saskatchewan and Alberta.

The selection of Messrs. Stewart and Riddell was made by the Governments of Alberta and Saskatchewan, and the nomination was accepted by the Dominion Government. If these two men accept the task, their appointments will be made at once and they will be asked to come to Ottawa to make arrangements for the organization of the board.

The Dominion Government, it is said, feels that as the western provinces have the financial responsibility under the law, they should have the choice of the men to take charge. The appointment of the other officials will be postponed pending the receipt of an answer from Messrs. Stewart and Riddell, and their advice will be sought on that matter.

If these two find themselves unable to accept the task of managing the wheat board, it is understood that the Dominion Government will request Saskatchewan and Alberta to make other nominations.

The province of Manitoba has not yet taken action in regard to the wheat board, as the new government is not yet in the saddle. It is said here that provision will be made in the organization of the new board for the addition of delegates to represent Manitoba, should that province desire to come in later.

Ottawa.—A hitch has developed in the appointments to the Wheat Board. The Dominion Government, which has been pursuing the course of inviting the western provinces to nominate the matter to nominate whom they desire to compose the board, is now compelled to issue a second invitation for Messrs. James Stewart and F. W. Riddell, who constituted the 1919 board, have notified the Government that they cannot act on this year's body. They expressed their gratitude for the confidence reposed in them, but added that they could not accept their course clear to accept the positions. Mr. Stewart is on his way home from Winnipeg. The Provincial Government of Alberta and Saskatchewan have been advised of this development and have been asked for new nominations.

Utilizing Native Fruits

Subject Worth of Consideration by People of Western Canada

It is difficult to secure imported berries and other fruits in first-class condition at our present markets. Not only is the quality below first grade, but the fruit is usually eaten at high prices. These conditions are prompting people to set out home fruit plantations of berries and hardy tree fruits. While waiting for these plants, bushes and trees to reach the stage of heavy bearing, it is profitable to accept the bounty of the native plants which bear edible fruits.

The Redman of the Canadian plains knew the value of native fruits, and not only used them freely when ripe, but were in the habit of drying some kinds to give a supply during the winter. Among the fruits eaten raw when ripe, and which were also dried for later use, are raspberries, currants, gooseberries, plum, sand cherry, chokeberry, pin cherry, grass, Saskatoon berry and buffalo berry. The straw berry is juicy and was gathered for immediate use. The many berries were eaten white froth, as was the pin cherry, the gooseberry, or "highland cherry." The hazel was used raw and in some cooking. The hawberry and chokeberry were used in the preparation of some meats. It seems that the fruit of the rose and the red haw was seldom gathered except at times of scarcity at the more affluent types.

The curing of the various fruits was chiefly by sun drying. Fruits were often picked before drying. The straw berries were packed into a pulp in an earthen-dryer, or ground in a rock, then the resulting pulp was packed in boxes for drying. The Saskatoon berries and raspberries dry most easily.

While settlers have a variety of methods of handling wild fruits. Among them are: Candies, preserves, drying, pickling, making sauce, jam, jelly and wine. Some were mostly added to settlement plants when these are being canned or preserved.

Jelly may be made from the juice of any of the native fruits. Some of these fruits are juicy when contained in the berry, but additional pectin may be had from the white part of the seed of orange or grape fruit, or by adding the juice of such fruits as the red currant, or pin cherry. When pectin is fully to be needed later in the season the juice of the red currant or red cherry may most be used fresh by sealing the jars without sugar, in sterilized jars.

The piece of meat crab apple is well adapted for making a jelly. Fruit juice is used to secure a jelly of good consistency. Translucent crab apple juice makes a clear cherry juice. Indecisive a mixture which can be made into a pleasing jelly. The juice of the pinberry may be readily made into a jelly. But very many people do not care greatly for this jelly, the grade plover were used to rely upon for their main supply. But certain plants are frequently mixed with that of the raspberry for jelly making.

Some fruits, while rather in sight, or that in taste, when cooked such as the Saskatoon berry, that have more satisfactory fruit, such as strawberry or ribwort, or chokeberry. One very reliable jam is made by cooking crab apples and good quality native plums until soft, and then putting both kinds through the colander. There are many combinations possible, as well as a number of ways of preserving each kind of fruit alone. It is likely that your neighbors can supply many good suggestions which have been gathered from experience. The native fruits have flavor unlike imported fruit. They have been important in the lives of people of the past, and are worthy of consideration. When the cultivated fruit plantation is set out it is a good time to work into the wilderness such trees as Saskatoon, pin cherry, raspberries and some native chokeberries—W. R. Leslie, Superintendent, Dominion Experimental Station, Morden, Manitoba.

Patatoes for Cuba

It is expected that Cuba will take many hundreds of thousands of bushels of New Brunswick potatoes of the 1922 crop, and provision is being made for the direct transshipment service from John, N.B., to Havana. It is believed that there is a large possibility of developing a trade in manufactured goods between Canada and Cuba, as various canoes being specifically mentioned.

Mr. Taft in England

Guest of the Bench and Bar of the Middle Temple

Mr. Taft, the Chief Justice of the United States of America, was the guest of the Bench and Bar of the Middle Temple, an honor rarely accorded.

Lord Birkenhead, in an almost conventional tone, proposed the toast of their distinguished guest. "I have been 23 years at the Bar and on the Bench," he said, "and I do not recall more than three or four occasions upon which the Bench and Bar of England have had the pleasure of entertaining guests of consequence. We desire you, Sir, to go from us as we desire you, a statesman, not a lawyer, but as one friend who has changed the hands of other friends, and with the realization of all of us that we shall receive you again." He recalled that the common law of the land ruled in his country, and they talked the same language as the lawyers of America.

The Lord Chancellor deflected the common law to the acceptance of the company as the machinery by which the main might defend himself in the right actions. Both countries were the joint heirs of the English law, but America had a written Constitution and the great British Empire.

Mr. Taft, when he rose to reply, was greeted with extraordinary enthusiasm. The company rising and for some time waving and cheering, he spoke quietly with a rein upon his lips, which he related to Lord Birkenhead.

Speaking of the English common law, he said that the English law had insisted that any man who was a man and in his right mind stood on his feet and acted for himself. That was the spirit that animated English law.

He spoke of his speech to a question from a man of Memphis, speaking at three o'clock in the morning, who thanked his hosts for their "excellent hospitality."

"What seemed to him the most extraordinary feature of his experience," he said, "was the fact that he was not alone with the Lord Chancellor (chiefly, apparently, he had done).

Mr. Taft added an unimportant note of confusion, in which, in spite of his reputation "as if I were a real brother of yours." On that point, he said, "It was a high occasion, carried through with a great deal of interest, and a great deal of profound feeling—Manchester Guardian.

Blessed Oblivion

Prince Glad to Escape Notice After Eight Months' Publicity

After all the raptures rejoicings which welcomed the Prince home last day, a solitary motor car drove up through the right gate into the quadrangle which faces Buckingham Palace. A young man in evening dress alighted and entered the side door of the Palace. He had the brown face of a traveler, and walked very quietly.

Nobody noticed him, for everybody was too busy admiring the shimmering brocade and sparkling diamonds which adorned the huge automobile invited to their Majesties' Court. In a few minutes the unknown and unnoticed young man emerged from the Palace, entered his motor car, and drove away. He was the Prince of Wales, who a few hours before had been triumphantly acclaimed by tens of thousands of Londoners. Now so one noticed him, and after eight months of incessant publicity and popularity he looked only happy to be a private person once again at last. He drove off smoking a cigar, and he was accompanied by a young private. Blessed is oblivion at times!—London Sunday Express.

Quite Possibly

During a sermon recently delivered there were frequent references to "sacramentalism, pain-suffering, joy, joyed Christians who have no real religion in their making." A lad of ten who had heard the sermon remarked to his father when he returned home: "Dad, I shouldn't have thought Dr. Smith would say anything that was about Christians this morning. There might have been some of them in the church!"—Pittsburgh Telegraph.

For a Platinum Ceiling

The Russian Steamer Veneta is declared in a dispatch from Vienna to have been for some time accumulating a platinum reserve with the object of establishing a reference which will replace the gold standard. Baron Byng at Banff

During his holiday at Banff in the Canadian Rockies, following his arduous tour of Western Canada, His Excellency the Governor-General took an early morning ride each day, accompanied by Inspector Dennis Ryan, of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and members of his staff. He also rode his morning ride in the Canadian Pacific, and a special train parked on a near siding. Banff is the capital of Rocky Mountain Park, and during his morning ride the Governor-General saw wild deer, elk and mountain sheep, all of which find sanctuary in the park and above their four of snow.

Reduces Military Expenditures

France Leads the World in Proposed Reductions

France "in spite of the heavy burden of the cost of ensuring her safety and of fulfilling her international obligations has imposed" is leading the world in the proportionate reduction of military expenditures, according to an official memorandum respecting the military budgets of 11 leading countries compiled by the French Government.

Italy, with an increase of 220 per cent. in her war budget over the year 1912-13, stands far ahead in the list, the memorandum points out, while Spain, with an increase of 52 per cent. is at the bottom. Other countries, the compilation shows, range in the following order: Japan, 29 per cent.; Spain, 27 per cent.; Norway, 195 per cent.; Great Britain, 181 per cent.; United States, 171 per cent.; Sweden, 155 per cent.; Belgium, 125 per cent.; Denmark, 125 per cent.; and Switzerland, 73 per cent.

Emphasizing upon the French compilation, the memorandum adds that in 1912 the military branch absorbed fifty-one per cent. of the general budget, or $1,637,173,828 francs from a total of $5,000,000,000. In 1922, with the military expenditures increased by 220 per cent., the military branch, such as the maintenance of troops on the Rhine and elsewhere, the detentions required by one-fourth of the general appropriations, or $550,000,000 francs, from a total of approximately $5,000,000,000 for the entire Government.

An English-Speaking Union

Large Factor in Working for Peace of the World

Englishmen and Americans, though they speak the same language, are different, made up by different, complex, and often conflicting, influences from the same stock. Englishmen remain homogeneous—Americans have been affected the influence of races for one hundred years. And yet, with all this, they are more alike than any other two peoples. Their ideals of individual liberty, of popular government, of popular self-restraint, of ethical obligations, and their potential military strength, and financial influence and control, they can, if they set together, make more strength for peace than any other two peoples. The world needs, therefore, an English-speaking union, not so much one made by treaty, but one anchored in the joint determination of the united power of the two peoples and a joint determination to exert that power for the peace and the good of the world.—W. H. Taft, Chief Justice of the U.S.

Canada's Export Trade

Canada's export trade is going ahead. Domestic merchandise exported last month totalled $7,750,616, as compared with $6,146,161 in May, and $5,675,289 in June of last year. Imports entered for consumption compared with the previous month sank at decrease. Last month imports were $6,668,729 in May, $6,611,574 in June, 1921, $5,644,658. The grand total of Canadian trade was $13,717,754, in June 1922, as compared with $13,325,847 in June of last year, and $11,735,817 in June of last year.

A Home for the Prince

Prince of Wales May Stay in Modest Establishment Disguised as York House

Since the return of the Prince of Wales from his tour in the east, the question of his future residence, both in London and the country, has been under serious consideration. No decision has yet been reached, but it is probable that His Royal Highness will retain his present rather modest establishment in York House, 81, James' Palace, at least for the present.

Queen Alexandra has intimated that she is willing to relinquish the possession of Marlborough House in favor of the Prince of Wales at any time, but he has declined this offer, adding characteristically, that he "would probably not let in the place." It being "miles too big" for him. Therefore, until such time as he marries, it seems safe to say that the Prince will not become the occupant of Marlborough House.

The question of a country residence for the Prince of Wales has been debated since the war at considerable length. Years ago the hope was expressed that he would eventually have a home in his princely title, both the King and the Prince at one time considered this.

It is probable the Prince will only take over White Lodge in Richmond Park, where he was born 23 years ago. The present occupant is the veteran Viscount Purbeck, who when the place was last let by the King some years ago.

Another residence which the King would like to see occupied once more is Frogmore. It has been without a tenant the greater part of the present century, but it was recently arranged to be rearranged and brought into line with modern requirements.

It was at one time suggested that the Prince should be installed at the Earl and Countess of Athlone, but they much preferred their smaller and more compact home in the Henry VII. tower of the Palace.

The Prince, however, has pointed out that, for the next year or so at all events, he would be only able to pass a few weeks at Frogmore annually. His tastes are extremely simple, and he admits that he has no desire to be bothered with the expense of a large residence that would of necessity be closed for the greater part of the year. However, the Prince, no doubt, will leave temporarily a hunting box in some country where he can enjoy several days' sport whenever he can spare the time from his many duties and several residences of this description have recently been brought under his notice in the hope that they will prove suitable.

When the Prince acquires a house of this nature he will have his brothers, the Duke of York and the Duke of Gloucester, and all of them are devotees of the chase.

Money and Comfort

Average Workman Has Better Time Than Average Millionaire

Charles P. Steinmetz, whose salary is well over $100,000 a year, lives like a poor man. His home is worth millions, works at a deal table about twenty cents, and sleeps on a thirty old sofa in his laboratory. Henry Ford drives about Detroit in a Ford sedan.

All that a rich man gets for his money, in excess of the comforts enjoyed by the average man, are frills and responsibilities. The average workman has a better time of it, on the whole, than the average rich man. Money has little to do with the enjoyment of life. As long as a man has good, wholesome food, warm clothes, and a comfortable bed to sleep in, he can "get the most out of life" with comparatively little trouble.

It is, in fact, the man of little philosophy and a reasonable sense of proportion.

A good workman can live as comfortably as a millionaire, and a poor whole he has a better chance for happiness.—Saskatoon Star.

Find Old Roman Barge

Important archeological discoveries have been made at Castello De Porto near Rome. The find of an ancient Roman barge has been excavated near a small lake. It is presumably a relic of the mercantile fleet which was used to transport goods from Sicily to Rome before Castello De Porto shipped by the Tiber River. The hull is like similar relics of New's built at Lerici and Nervi. Excavations are proceeding and other discoveries are expected.

Sawdust Fuel

Tons of sawdust, which has been consumed by the burners of B.C. mills could be utilized to heat economically the business district of Vancouver. The sawdust has been reached by six Vancouver aldermen after being conducted over the central heating plants of the mills and Portland, consuming 1,400 tons of sawdust daily.

McMurray Tar Sands

Experiments in Athabasca Field Would Indicate Great Possibilities

Discussing the tar-sand experiments carried on by various parties in Athabasca, Canada, district, Dr. G. A. Jago, of Waterloo, Ontario, representing the Western capitalists has made some runs with a 20-bbl. plant, with the result that they are now able to produce a barrel of crude oil for 25 cents.

Dr. Jago stated that the crude contained an average about 14 per cent. gasoline, 45 per cent. kerosene, 25 per cent. heavy and light lubricants, and 5 per cent. residue, made up chiefly of bitumen. The tar sands, he reported have been demonstrated to extend over an area of 2,000 square miles, at least, and some authorities hold that they cover 15,000 square miles. They are from 50 to 175 feet in thickness, with an overlay of base soil from 5 to 100 feet in depth. Numerous holdings have been acquired by American, British and Canadian interests, which have carried on experimental work.

In British Columbia the work is being carried on by General Lindsay, who is expected to have his experiments completed in time to publish McMurray in August of this year. Thomas J. Huron and Petro, a manufacturer of oil-well machinery and backed by the veteran Viscount Purbeck, is now erecting a plant at McMurray. G. J. Hammond, representing Vancouver and California interests, in May shipped a deduction of $100,000 to the Department of Mines of the federal government for engineering and geology for a pilot plant view. He is now arranging to start work in the Western Research Co., of Denver, Colo., is now assembling a plant at Denver, which will be in operation at McMurray by October. The Alcan Oil Co., of New York, started work last season and is continuing this year.

Up to the present time, the tar sand processes have been utilized for treating the tar sands. One is by separating the tar from the sand by separation, and the third distillation on the ground. The expenses of all three methods are satisfied that their processes are commercially feasible, and the work has now reached the state where the commercial success or failure of the various operations can be definitely decided. Railway rates to McMurray have been reduced to facilitate development, and energy is available from the Athabasca River, and natural gas in commercial quantities is within 40 miles of McMurray. It has been estimated that an acre of tar sands averaging 50 feet deep contains 30,000 bbl. of crude oil.—Victor Lauriston in Oil & Gas Journal.

Will Effect Big Saving

Consolidation of Departments of Defense Will Involve Big Restraints

By the time the present reorganization of the new department of national defence is completed there will be a saving of $100,000,000 in the three departments concerned. This includes the air board and the naval service department, as well as the department of national defence. Out of these 300 employees, 100 retired at the end of the last fiscal year. Some 300 have been discharged since the end of the last fiscal year. More than 100 more will be dispensed with before the reconstruction is finished. The action is not yet in force, but will be brought into effect by proclamation when the reclassification is completed.

The saving made in these three departments by the consolidation will not at all be made, appear in the ordinary estimates of the three departments. Many of the positions being vacated were paid for out of war and demobilization votes. The total reduction made in the three departments by these three departments was nearly $2,000,000, and it is stated that there has been a saving of $600,000 in addition, growing out of the abolition of positions formerly paid out of war and demobilization appropriations.

School Business

A regular meeting of the trustees of Mirror Consolidated School District, No. 31, was held in the secretary's office last Saturday evening with Trustees Cairns, Hume and Crutchfield present.

Three tenders for the position of janitor of the school were considered, viz.: Mrs. W. J. Paton, at $75.00 per month; H. Jones, at $60.00; and Fred. C. Hazell, at $50.00. The tender of Mr. Hazell was accepted.

The board was advised that Mrs. J. F. Baugh was unable to accept the position of primary teacher and the secretary was instructed to write some of the other applicants.

Arrangements will be made with the firm installing the heating plant in the new Bashaw school house to make some necessary repairs to the Mirror plant.

Government News

Following the passing of the legislation making possible the operation of a wheat board in Alberta the legislature, in special session, prorogued Monday evening of last week. The indemnity bill was passed providing an indemnity of $250 for the special session, the amount having been raised from $200 on the motion of Robert Pearson, Independent, of Calgary, during the sitting of the house in committee.

The department of agriculture is continuing its investigation of the hay situation in the northern districts. No hay buyers have as yet been sent out by the government however. When such hay buyers are sent out, they will be furnished with a letter in which their authority will be stated. No buyers at present in the field have any authority from the government.

Wheat cutting has commenced at several points in the province, but will not become general until the next two weeks. Cutting of rye is general.

Various authorities in the Lethbridge district estimate that the production of all grains in Southern Alberta will total thirty-four million bushels this fall.

A considerable reduction in the number of foreclosures on Southern Alberta farms has resulted as a consequence of recent provincial legislation, it is stated.

That Western Canada will ship considerably more wheat to the coming season than formerly, is the statement made by the director of a large Japanese grain firm at present visiting Alberta.

Recent provincial appointments include E. S. Hogg, of Red Deer, as sheriff for the Red Deer judicial district; Geo. A. Walls, of Bashaw, as police magistrate; and Dr. Curtis, of Stettler, as Neglected Children's Commissioner.

Farm Wages

That the wages to be paid for harvesting and threshing throughout the three western provinces were set by representatives of the United Farmers' organization, was the statement made by J. W. Mitchell, director of the Alberta government employment service, on his return from Winnipeg recently. Mr. Mitchell represented Alberta at the conference there between railway officials and representatives of the employment service of the three prairie provinces. The Farmers' organization of both Manitoba and Saskatchewan were represented at the conference. On the recommendation of these two men, the railways were given authority to promise farm hands from the east and from British Columbia $3.50 a day during harvest, and $1.00 a day for threshing. To include board and lodging. It is estimated that Saskatchewan will require 25,000 men in addition to the available supply already in the province, to harvest the crops there. Manitoba will require 15,000 men, and Alberta 4000.

The Wheat Board

Federal action to constitute the Canadian wheat board, following the passing of concurrent legislation by the legislatures of Alberta and Saskatchewan, upon which the action by the Dominion government depends, is expected without delay, in order that the board may be appointed and have its machinery ready for operation by the time the 1922 wheat crop begins to move from the prairie provinces.

The act passed by the Dominion government was to come into effect on the passage of required legislation by "two or more provinces." This was generally accepted as referring to Alberta and Saskatchewan, no such action having been expected in Manitoba, owing to the then impending provincial elections.

The board, when appointed, is to have its powers passed upon by the governor-in-council, which means that the necessary regulations governing the marketing of wheat through this agency must pass as federal orders-in-council before they become effective. The matter of appointments to the board will, it is expected, be taken up by the cabinet without delay.

so that there will be no tie-up of grain in the farmers' hands.

Regulations likely to govern operations of the board and the status of the grain dealing agencies under these regulations were discussed in a conference between officials of the grain exchange and the minister of trade and commerce, recently, and it is anticipated that when the new board is formed it will follow the lines laid down by its predecessor, the Canada wheat board of 1919, and use the existing grain trade machinery for handling the crop.
